

ISANA NZ supports international education in New Zealand through:

- Informing members of the most recent industry research and information
- Connecting members with the right people
- Providing members with better ways to access information
- Offering professional development to members
- Helping members to give their students the best academic, social and cultural experience
- Introducing members to an approachable and readily-accessible network of professionals
- Suggesting pathways for further work opportunities

ISANA NZ assists Institutions by:

- Offering a wider opportunity for professional development of your staff through current information, workshops and research
- Using innovative training to professionally develop your staff
- Encouraging professional standards through the ISANA "Code of Ethics"
- Providing your staff with access to an international knowledge network through ISANA NZ membership

ISANA NZ advocates for International Education by:

- Working towards improving the students' study experience of their host country
- Raising the profile of New Zealand as a notable study destination for international students
- Setting and maintaining standards of best practice

What is ISANA NZ?

ISANA NZ is an association for international education professionals. Members of ISANA NZ have supported international students and institutions in New Zealand since 2001.

With skills in programme development and delivery, teaching, management, and a range of other roles, ISANA NZ members have been key contributors to the high level of international student services across all education sectors in New Zealand.

Our collective knowledge and experience create a powerful network of individuals dedicated to professional standards and best practice for the benefit of students.

Contact ISANA NZ:

For general information, membership enquiries or for membership support, please contact:

isananz@gmail.com

ISANA NZ
 PO Box 6082
 Palmerston North 4445
 New Zealand

www.isananz.org.nz

As a member of ISANA NZ, you will receive:

- Regular news updates on the international education sector locally and overseas
- Access to specific interest group networks and school clusters
- Information about ISANA NZ and ISANA events, such as professional development workshops and conferences
- Discounted offers at ISANA NZ and ISANA events for members
- Access to discussion and information with other International education professionals via the ISANA NZ network
- Access to academic papers and resources from the annual ISANA NZ and ISANA International conferences and workshops
- Access to key industry resources relating to international education in the areas of student services, administration, teaching, and government policy.
- Access to reviews of policies and other initiatives

ISANA NZ is about reliable and current information:

ISANA NZ ensures its members are informed about the latest changes to the international education industry. Having access to professional development, regular email updates, and readily-available contacts guarantees members are supported by others when dealing with difficult situations or taking on demanding roles.

Members get their professional edge at a discount:

ISANA NZ offers professional development programmes to everyone in the international education industry to help them extend their knowledge and refine their skills, but members can receive this beneficial training at a discounted cost.

The ISANA NZ Conference and Professional Development (PD) Days, and ISANA International Conference are key events on the international education calendar and offer members the chance to network with their peers on a social and professional level.

These conferences and PD Days provide outstanding opportunities to showcase best practice, academic and applied research, and provide networking and special interest meetings and contact with international education professionals working across all educational sectors.

The Background of ISANA NZ:

ISANA was established in Australia in 1989 and has a branch in each state and territory. The New Zealand branch of ISANA was formed in 2001 by ISANA members resident in New Zealand. In 2010, the New Zealand branch became an incorporated trust. ISANA International Education Association New Zealand Inc., better known as ISANA NZ, continues to work in association with ISANA.

How does ISANA NZ work?

ISANA NZ is an incorporated trust which is governed by an executive committee elected by the ISANA NZ members. The executive committee members work in different sectors of the international education industry throughout New Zealand, and so are able to provide a variety of perspectives, skills and knowledge.

ISANA NZ members have Special Interests:

Members benefit from mentoring and information available to them through the ISANA NZ network, as well as through special interest groups including:

- Admissions
- Pre-University and Transition
- Language and Learning
- Homestay and Accommodation
- Study Abroad and Exchange
- Counselling
- Academic Progress
- Intermediate/Secondary Schools

Share in ISANA NZ's Collective Knowledge:

ISANA NZ offers specific or tailor-made workshops.

Workshop presenters cater for specific Professional Development requirements to meet the needs of members and institutions.

Professional Development sessions focus on topics such as intercultural communication, cultural diversity, internationalisation, international student advising and an induction for staff new to international education.

ISANA NZ advocates for the rights of International Students:

ISANA NZ advocates for the rights and interests of international students in New Zealand, through consultation and liaison with the New Zealand government and other agencies.

ISANA NZ members are confident and well-prepared to deal with the challenges of upholding consistently high standards of service delivery to international students.

To become a member:

- To receive a membership form, or for any advice or queries about the membership process, contact isananz@gmail.com

